At the end, the Commission forms, in descending order, the general ranking of merit by adding the votes attributed to each candidate in the evaluation of the titles and the project and the score assigned to the interview.

The general ranking lists will be published on the University's website at <https://web.unicz.it/it/category/bandi-ateneo>.

The President of the Selection Board promptly sends the minutes of the selection operations to the Rector who, normally within 15 days, from the date of receipt of the above-mentioned minutes, it shall, by its own decree, approve the acts of the selection or postpone them for any regularisation. From the day following the date of publication of the Rector's Decree approving the selection documents on the website <https://web.unicz.it/it/category/bandi-ateneo>, they run, under penalty of forfeiture, the deadlines for the submission of the application for registration pursuant to art. 8.

Art. 7 – Rankings

The admission to the courses with the relative allocation of the scholarship will take place with rectoral decree, on the basis of the general ranking of merit and, in particular:

- priority will be given to the Scholarships financed by the University, according to the order of score in the general ranking;
- scholarships funded under the PNRR Public Administration, the PNRR Cultural Heritage and the PNRR Digital and Environmental Transitions, according to the order of score in the general ranking based on the area in which the project presented by the candidate (Public Administration, Cultural heritage or Digital and environmental transitions) within the limit of the number of scholarships respectively put up for competition for that specific type of scholarship;
- Finally, places without a scholarship.

UNIVERSITÀ degli STUDI MAGNA GRÆCIA di CATANZARO

The Commission shall form the general ranking of merit on the basis of the scores obtained by the candidates in the evaluation of the project and the qualifications and in the interview, indicating the consistency of the project submitted by the candidates with the PNRR Public Administration, the PNRR Cultural Heritage and the PNRR Digital and Environmental Transitions and specifying the candidates who have competed for the places reserved for graduates with a foreign title.

In the event that the results of the admission tests lead to an ex aequo situation for a post with scholarship, the assessment of the economic situation determined pursuant to D.P.C. 9/04/2001 prevails.

To this end, candidates in an ex aequo position are required to submit, online, the request for the ISEE Model the day following the date of publication of the merit ranking; In any case, candidates in an ex aequo position must transmit the ISEE model to the University Administration (at the address affarigenerali@cert.unicz.it or affarigenerali1@unicz.it) no later than September 18, 2023 in order to allow the award of PNRR scholarships by the ministerial deadline; to this end, candidates admitted to the interview are invited to check in advance the documentation and the time necessary for the issuance of the ISEE.

In case of further parity, the youngest candidate of age prevails pursuant to art. 3, c. 7 of law 127/1997, as supplemented by art. 2 of Law 191/1998.

In the event that the results of the admission tests lead to an ex aequo situation for a post without scholarship, the youngest candidate shall prevail.

Admission to the courses, with the relative allocation of the scholarship, will be by decree of the rector on the basis of the general ranking of merit.

If posts reserved for foreign graduates are not allocated for lack of suitable candidates, these posts will be made available for admission procedures for ordinary posts.

For the PhD course in "Law and economics of transitions and sustainable development", if the places foreseen for a curriculum are not all assigned due to a lack of suitable candidates on that curriculum, these places will be made available for the other curriculum .

In the case of placement in a position useful in several doctoral courses, the order of priority expressed in the application for participation, by means of a declaration in lieu of the document of notoriety, will be a binding criterion for admission to the courses.

The activation of the curricula depends on the ranking of the candidates who have chosen a particular curriculum.

Therefore, only the curricula for which there are in the general ranking of merit winning candidates who had chosen those particular curricula will be activated.

Courses start on November 2nd 2023.

In the event that a grant is declared ineligible for NRRP funding following verification by the competent ministerial office, the candidate registered in the place corresponding to that grant will be declared forfeited.

The candidate will be entitled to the refund of the amount of € 360,00, relating to the registration and attendance fee, and € 150,00 relating to the Fee for the right to study, in accordance with the procedures that will be communicated later. The availability of at least No. 3 scholarships for each doctoral course for its activation remains limited.

ANNEX A –Details of Ph.D. Courses Economic and social legal Area A.Y. 2023/24

DIGITAL SOCIETY LAW AND TECHNOLOGICAL INNOVATION

EDUCATIONAL OBJECTIVES

The PhD programme focuses on three main lines of research:

- new technologies, security, people and fundamental rights;
- new technologies and digitisation of P.A.;
- new technologies, tourist and cultural offer.

The so called "digital revolution" (or "fourth revolution") and the widespread presence of new technologies have radically changed society, relations with companies and with the P.A., the market and the production organization itself, with a parallel growth in the demand for new forms of protection and guarantee of fundamental rights.

Both in the private sector and in relations involving the PA, the digitalization process is a priority objective to ensure services of higher quality, efficiency and effectiveness, as well as to create new development opportunities for the country's economy; the increasingly consistent transition to a "digital" society has, of course, various implications, such as:

- the protection of privacy and of all those new categories of interests worthy of protection (c. d. epistemic rights) related to the theme of c. d. surveillance capitalism; that is, the model of production and accumulation of wealth practiced by large digital corporations (Amazon, Google, Facebook) and founded on a wild combination of big data and algorithms, in order to 'automate' the behavior of individual users - on the Net as in the real world - transforming them into marketable goods;
 - the dematerialisation of data ownership rights (with attention to the subject of the so called bit property and cc.dd. NFT or non-fungible token);
 - dematerialisation of payment services (taxes) and fulfilment of public and private obligations (and forms of protection);
 - consideration of digital platforms and forms of algorithmic trading (public or private: Smart Contracts; black box algorithmics contracts; self-driving contracts); and the related problem of liability for default c. d. algorithmic obligations and remedies in the event of damage caused by Robot;
 - computer security guarantees (encrypted systems and blockchain technology);
 - the revision of traditional administrative processes and procedures between citizens and P.A. (in this context, the use of algorithms by P.A.) will also be investigated;
 - the activation and use of public services, the enhancement of cultural heritage and tourism in digital form.
- Furthermore, technology can be an important means of supporting the social inclusion of disabled people, both in terms of care and rehabilitation, but also in terms of improving their quality of life, by achieving greater autonomy, that allows them to work, study, communicate and relate to others.

Central is also the analysis of the ethical and economic implications related to modern technologies, the digitalization of processes and innovation, including in the research paths also profiles related to the enhancement of the tourist and cultural offer.

In this context, the profile of responsibility for the use of digital technologies will also be the subject of a specific investigation; on the other hand, taking into account the relationship between justice and new technologies, will also be the subject of predictive justice.

UNIVERSITÀ degli STUDI MAGNA GRÆCIA di CATANZARO

The PhD course in "Digital Society Law and Technological Innovation", based on excellence, interdisciplinarity and internationalization, aims to promote research on the legal and economic implications of modern technologies, with regard to both relations between private individuals and those with the Public Administration. Specifically, it offers a training course aimed at acquiring the scientific and methodological skills necessary for training in the specific field of digitalization and technological innovations applied to the legal sciences.

The course, in this sense, is directed to provide a high and cutting-edge training, both in terms of content and method, carrying out high-level research activities aimed at acquiring theoretical training and specific expertise in the scientific-disciplinary fields involved.

The PhD course aims, in fact, at the acquisition of a method approach and an instrumental mindset (in addition to the continuation of the research activity, also) to carry out professional activities in the fields involved in the study path.

CURRICULA

Not applicable

CONSISTENCY WITH THE PNRR

The project, the training objectives and the professional opportunities of the PhD in Digital Society Law and Technological Innovation are consistent with Mission 1 - DIGITALIZATION, INNOVATION, COMPETITIVENESS, CULTURE AND TOURISM which aims to relaunch the productivity of the system, focusing on innovation and digitalization in the sectors of Public Administration, Culture and Tourism and in general the production system, and considering also the possible impact on the strategic and transversal priorities foreseen by the Plan (Youth, Gender Equality and South). The PhD Course, in fact, aims to train highly qualified and specialized experts, able to confront the implications of digital evolution, both theoretically and practically, with knowledge of technical profiles and also argumentative ability and legal-economic development.

The coherence with Mission 1 specifically concerns:

- component 1. DIGITIZATION, INNOVATION AND SECURITY IN THE P.A.;
- component 2. DIGITISATION, INNOVATION AND COMPETITIVENESS IN THE PRODUCTION SYSTEM;
- component 3. TOURISM AND CULTURE 4.0.

With reference to component 1, the coherence derives from the focus on the process of digitization of the PA, and its possible transversal impact, direct or indirect, also in terms of gender rebalancing, with specific attention to technical profiles and the related regulatory framework; consistency with component 2 is based on the focus on the protection of the fundamental rights of the person in modern digital society, also with a view to gender equality and the inclusion of disabled people; coherence with component 3 is given by the focus on research on tourism and cultural offer, taking into account the need for environmental sustainability and the potential of digital, as well as the potential of new technologies to offer new services to people and improve access to resources.

LAW AND ECONOMICS OF TRANSITIONS AND SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT

EDUCATIONAL OBJECTIVES

The activation of the PhD course in "Law and Economics of transitions and sustainable development" is one of the actions provided for by the project of the Department of Excellence of the Magna Graecia University of Catanzaro. The course focuses on interdisciplinary training between jurists and economists on issues that involve the current transition processes oriented to the establishment of an economic model of sustainable development.

The training project includes two curricula - one legal and the other economic-business - and focuses on the different research profiles affected by the ecological, technological and digital transition, involving the areas of private law, advertising and business-economics.

In particular, the legal curriculum will deal with the implications, from the point of view of the classification of phenomena, the production rules and the instruments and techniques of legal circulation of wealth and the protection of rights, these implications stemming from transitions and reflected by the lines of regulatory intervention on the economic and social fabric, with a view to market regulation, business management, environmental protection and technological innovation.

The economic-business curriculum provides a double profile: one more strictly economic that will deal with issues related to sustainable economics, with a particular attention to the themes of education, health, culture and the environment; the other, organizational-business, more oriented to the circular economy and the digital and green transformation of enterprises. In general, all the issues addressed are part of the key objectives of the ecological, technological and digital transition that the EU Member States, including Italy, have decided to pursue, as a key hub to boost employment and the economy, boosting production and investment. The Doctoral Course aims to provide specialist skills on emerging issues related to ecological, technological and digital transition. The objective is the training of jurists and economists with transversal skills, which allow to understand and interpret the complexity of new phenomena. Each curriculum has specific objectives:

The legal curriculum forms lawyers able to confront the evolution of the system, by acquiring a wealth of expertise in terms of the analysis of legal issues and the systematic framing of them, which will enable the problems posed by the changes taking place in the physiognomy of the traditional institutes of private law and national and transnational public law.

The business-economics curriculum aims to train PhDs who possess high-level skills in all fundamental aspects (methodological, theoretical, quantitative) of the economic sciences and organizational-business. The objective is to develop original studies, on the frontier of scientific research, within the themes of economic transition and sustainable development.

CONSISTENCY WITH THE PNRR

The Doctoral Course is consistent with the topics covered by the PNRR. The training objective is the preparation of researchers and professionals competent on the profiles of private and public law, as well as on the economic and corporate, involved in the ecological, technological and digital transition. Interdisciplinarity, as a characteristic feature of the training course, focuses on methodological innovation in order to allow the acquisition of a wealth of skills suitable for addressing new issues, in terms of analysis of the context and interpretation of reality, given the changes taking place in the economic and social fabric.

UNIVERSITÀ degli STUDI MAGNA GRÆCIA di CATANZARO

In particular, the PhD course is compatible with PNRR Mission 1 (Digitalization, Innovation, Competitiveness, Culture and Tourism) with particular regard to the areas of research related to the effects of the use of new technologies on the relations of private and public law, also with regard to the organizational and management profiles of companies and public administration. It is also compatible with Mission 2 (Green Revolution and Ecological Transition), especially with regard to the implications, in terms of the framework of phenomena and analysis of the consequences on economic institutions, resulting from the ecological transition. It is, finally, compatible with Mission 5 (inclusion and cohesion), as a research area closely linked to ecological, technological and digital transitions, with a view to ensuring instrumental safeguards to ensure fair governance of changes.

EUROPEAN LEGAL AND ECONOMIC ORDER

EDUCATIONAL OBJECTIVES

It is a question of making operational a research space aimed at interrogating supranationality both in the legal field and from an economic science perspective having regard to the specific evolution of the European integration process, as this has occurred in recent decades, in particular in the European Union. European supranationality is by now a fact and a history which determines the conduct of institutions, governments, rights, markets and companies at the European level, imbuing the entire social life of the Member States of the European Union and not only these, but going beyond the same borders of the Union, in a genuinely pan-European perspective. The project of the doctorate is therefore to build an interdisciplinary forum, which takes on plural perspectives, such as those of the theory of law, positive law, economics, and sociology, to allow the circulation of different information and analyzes of which each of takes on these perspectives, in order to train scholars but also and above all operators, capable of facing the great challenges that the dense supranationality of European integration produces and then projects on institutional, economic and financial action, and on social life itself of the various European states. To this end, it is believed that a broad disposition to consult and adopt methodologies of sectors other than those in which one operates both as jurists, economists and sociologists is necessary. The institutional pluralism of European integration, and its openness to the "different", or to the "other", inevitably refers to the methodological pluralism of the researches which propose to study it, to conceptualise it, and then eventually and prudently to prepare and recommend one better implementation. European supranationality therefore pushes us towards tolerance and multidisciplinary and multinormative "mixing". The doctorate in "European legal and economic order" intends to interpret and actively bear this pluralist need and such an attitude of scientific "meekness".

The course provides multidisciplinary skills in the theory of law and the constitution, in positive law (civil, commercial and labour), in economics, with reference to companies, markets and institutions in a European perspective, and in sociology, with regard to migration and of the right to health. Criminal law profiles of the European legal and economic system are also considered in a historical and theoretical framework. The aim is to implement an articulated and plural reflection on juridical supranationality and in particular on the European economic constitution. The course includes specific educational objectives for the 4 curricula: 1) The curriculum "Theory and history of law: sociality and the supranational public sphere" focuses on the revival of a new supranational common law, with attention to globalization, European integration and their constitutionalization. 2) The curriculum "Rights, protection, markets: negotiating autonomy and business disciplines" guarantees legal skills ranging from topics close to consumer protection up to contracts, and the discipline of employment relationships. 3) The curriculum "Enterprises, markets and institutions in the European Union" offers specialized in-depth studies on the subject of rules, operating and financing models for companies, real and financial markets, institutions and economic policies in particular in the European Union. Finally, 4) the curriculum "Migrations, European health systems and protection of fundamental rights" proposes research and provides skills for the analysis of social and legal relationships, and of fundamental rights, in relation to the migration phenomenon and the management of public health in a comparative and European perspective.

CONSISTENCY WITH THE PNRR

The research doctorate in "European legal and economic order", established at the Department of Law, Economics and Sociology of the Magna Graecia University of Catanzaro, aims to focus on sustainable and inclusive research that is oriented towards generating models virtuous of growth and development for our country. Scientific research represents, today more than ever, an obligatory step to adapt our territories to the new challenges that the present places before us, and therefore this must be oriented in such a way as to have an active role in society, applying the results of studies for practical purposes.

The interdisciplinarity of the research doctorate therefore becomes fundamental for the training of new professional figures who, through preparation inspired by the various scientific approaches that flow into the doctoral programme, are effectively able to support and stimulate innovation and the green and digital transition. In this sense, through seminars, meetings, congresses and conferences, as has already been done in recent years, the aim is to promote and stimulate the meeting between the world of research and the local and national production system, in order to increase the country's competitiveness, even more in the current scenario.

The methods of interconnection between the production system and scientific research can be favored by close collaboration between the public and private sectors, an objective that the University of Catanzaro has already made its own, providing training internships within companies and businesses operating in the Calabrian area, and thus favoring the creation of a synergistic approach, certainly more suitable for facing the technological, economic and social challenges of our time. The aim is to create a new generation of researchers and professionals who will become protagonists and interpreters of the change in the country system, contributing decisively to the formation of renewed relationships between territories, research, businesses and public administration, helping entry into the world of work of specific figures suitable for facing and overcoming the important challenges well outlined and summarized within the PNRR.

That said, the doctorate in "European legal and economic order" is compatible with the following areas indicated by the PNRR:

1. Within scope 5.2 it is compatible with:

point 5.2.1 "Cultural heritage" and specifically with articulations n. 1 "Digitization of protection, conservation and enhancement processes", n. 4 "Application of new economic models for sustainability and resilience" and n. 5 "Participatory approach to cultural heritage".

2. Within scope 5.4 it is compatible with:

A. point 5.4.1 "Digital transition" and specifically with articulations n. 1 "Human-centred services", no. 3 "Country competitiveness" and n. 4 "Heterogeneous devices and systems";

B. point 5.4.3 "Artificial intelligence" and more specifically with articulations n. 1 "Artificial intelligence for artificial intelligence", n. 2 "Human-centric artificial intelligence", n. 4 "Artificial intelligence for society" and n. 6 "Artificial intelligence for industrial production".

3. Within scope 5.5 it is compatible with:

point 5.5.2 "Climate change, mitigation and adaptation" and more specifically with articulations n. 4 "Understanding, assessment and prediction of the impacts of climate change on natural and built environments, on health, well-being and societal cohesion", n. 5 "Methods and tools for accounting for emissions of climate-altering agents", n. 6 "Evaluation of the effectiveness and sustainability of mitigation measures", n. 8 "Methods and tools for understanding, measuring and monitoring climate adaptation measures" and n. 9 "Scientific training and dissemination on climate change".

4. Within scope 5.6 it is compatible with:

A. point 5.6.1 "Green Technologies" and more specifically with articulations n. 6 "A fair benchmarking: development and dissemination of industrial ecology methods for a correct comparative assessment between green and consolidated technologies";

UNIVERSITÀ degli STUDI MAGNA GRÆCIA di CATANZARO

B. point 5.6.3 "Bioindustry for the bioeconomy" and more specifically with articulation no. 4 "Innovative business models for the modern bioeconomy".
